PREAMBLE

1. The fees in this publication were prepared for the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association (CVMA), in partnership with the Alberta Veterinary Medical Association (ABVMA) to provide, to whom it may concern, a list of fees considered fair and just. These fees are only to serve as a guide. They are not intended to be binding on any party. No person is under any obligation to follow the fees published herein. If any person should choose not to follow these fees, he/she will not suffer in his/her relations with the Alberta Veterinary Medical Association members, or affiliates of the Alberta Veterinary Medical Association.

   Members of the profession must remember that conspiring to fix fees is a serious matter which could result in a breach of the Federal Competition Act. Simply stated, Alberta veterinarians should not cooperate or agree amongst themselves to use the Fee Guide to influence upwards fees for veterinary services. The use of the Fee Guide by any veterinarian is a matter of individual choice.

2. The following fees are determined to be reasonable for a doctor with average professional skill, judgment and dexterity rendering services under normal operating conditions. Specialists typically charge 15% – 20% higher than the fees listed in this guide. However, even under circumstances in which these conditions are fulfilled, no practitioner is obliged to charge for services as they are listed in this guide.

3. Fees in the 2026 Fee Guide are formulated from:
   - the Alberta survey of hospital owners;
   - the procedure frequency study from Alberta economic surveys;
   - the time study undertaken in Alberta economic surveys;
   - the state of the economy in 2025 and forecasts for 2026.

Fees are derived using:
- costs of overhead, non-veterinary staff salaries and benefits, rent, utilities, supplies, etc. (adjusted for inflation);
- time to perform the procedure as established in the economic survey;
- relative value of the procedure, relating to complexity, skill, responsibility and risk involved (established from the economic survey); and
- value of the veterinarian's and veterinary technologist's time, measured by comparing salaries of individuals working in comparable professions.

4. It is considered fair and just that an altered fee may be rendered where:
   - the case presents unusual complications;
   - the case demands exceptional skill or time;
   - the case demands immediate attention at the sacrifice of regular practice routine;
   - chronic or prolonged attention is provided at the convenience of the doctor;
   - the case may provide financial hardship to the client.

5. I.C. or Independent Consideration is utilized where the method used, or amount of necessary service has a large variance.

6. The four-digit code system is designed for reference to type of animal, type of service and procedure. This method was designed to track revenue by species. In the animal specific sections, the first digit designates the type of animal, and the remaining three digits designate the procedure. Specific ranges are given to each type of service. The following table illustrates how the Fee Guide has been divided for different species.

	CANINE	FELINE
Examinations	1000-1020	2000-2020
Vaccinations	1300-1320	2300-2320
Anesthesia and Sedation	1350-1399	2350-2399
Surgery	1400-1599	2400-2599
Dentistry	1600-1649	2600-2649
Professional Services	1700-1799	2700-2799
Hospitalization & Fluid Therapy	1800-1895	2800-2895

7. The coding in the Bird, Reptile and Small Mammal section of the Guide does not correspond to the Canine and Feline sections. It is presented alphabetically by section.

8. Unless otherwise noted, fees are only for the procedure identified and do not include anesthesia, charges for extra material, or special instrumentation.

9. The Fee Guide may be used to assist the practitioner when determining a professional fee. The following steps are recommended for a successful client / veterinarian relationship.
   a) Perform a thorough examination of the patient, explaining your findings as you proceed.
   b) Describe the treatment plan and prognosis in a manner which the client can fully understand. Assure yourself that the client has understood the presentation and encourage questions.
   c) Present your estimate of fees for treatment and obtain the owner's consent before beginning treatment.

In all cases, your fee should be based on your skill, judgment and experience.

We highly recommend that veterinarians start emphasizing the importance of the annual examination. Separating out the cost of the vaccines and the cost of the exam is one method of doing this. If future research allows us to decrease the frequency of booster vaccines, it will be important for our clients to understand that yearly examinations will still be needed.
